UNEARTHING HISTORY

SURREY ARCHAEOLOGICAL SOCIETY

Established in 1854 and at the forefront of Archaeology and Local History in Surrey and south-west London ever since.

MEMBERS

Our members include people of all backgrounds and ages.

Meet local archaeologists and historians and learn about their discoveries.

New members are very welcome. Anyone with skills in publicity, accounting, surveying and computing could particularly help the Society develop.

PARTNERS

The Society works with Surrey History Centre, Surrey County Archaeological Unit, Guildford Museum and many other local Archaeological and History Societies.

There are many opportunities to take part; lectures and seminars, identifying prehistoric flints and pottery, cataloguing archives, creating a photographic record of local industry, field walking, excavations, local history walks, working in a laboratory analysing finds.

EXCAVATIONS AND SURVEYS

Recent projects include surveys of bronze age barrows and Iron Age Hill forts, excavations of Roman sites at Flexford, Ashstead and Ewell, a survey of Newark Priory, excavations at Woking Palace, Abinger and Charlwood.

Village studies such as Thorpe, Ewell, Shere, Gomshall, Peaslake, Ewhurst, Esher, Great Bookham and Old Woking help unravel the history of Surrey.

PUBLICATIONS

The Society has many publications: Surrey Archaeological Collections and Surrey History give in-depth reports and the Bulletin, issued six times a year, has news of excavations, surveys, talks and events.

All are free to members.

The interactive website:
